Utilizing the Russian Army.

A great plague of locusts, having invaded the Caucasus, the Russian army there has been sent into the field to make war upon and destroy them. In the Zabatal district, fifty officers are in charge of the operations against the common enemy. In the Adjeakhor district Col. Seradom has deployed a column of 3,000 men to oppose the invaders. In Nukim the war is carried on by 700 peasants armed with brooms. In Daghestan 5,000 men are fighting the locusts, which are found here almost in a solid mass, overspreading a space of 325 square miles. They destroy 150,000 pounds of locusts a day, and have already slain nearly 4,000 tons without making much impression on the countless swarms. Some of these locusts, it is said, have appeared in the voiga, and others in the grain fields of Reazar, in central Russia, causing great alarm.
